

RECOMMENDATION NO. 3

DISCUSSION:

Office of Current Intelligence (OCI) Periodic Requirement Lists (PRL's) are received initially from OCI by FI/ [REDACTED] and are delivered, by courier, to the Office of the Chief, NE [REDACTED]. The Chief NE [REDACTED] secretary sorts these lists on the basis of an established distribution pattern for delivery to the Reports Officers in the various NE Branches. These Reports Officers then must sort them on the basis of an established distribution pattern for transmission to their respective field stations. These lists are then handled by the Reports Officers according to station and sent back to [REDACTED] for wrapping and pouching to the field.

RECOMMENDATION:

That RID be requested to pouch, direct, the field copies of PRL's to NE field stations as soon as they are received from [REDACTED]. The distribution pattern for the NE field stations should be determined by NE Division and given to RID. This automatic distribution of PRL's to the field by RID will speed up the transmission of PRL's to the field, and will eliminate a task presently being performed by the Chief, NE [REDACTED] secretary and the Branch Reports Officers.
